It's a small-sized application that lists all installed fonts on your computer and lets you write custom text, in order to view it with different font styles. It's useful for web designers looking for ideas, as well as students who want to write and print projects, for example. Simple setup and interface Installing this tool takes minimal time and effort, thanks to the simple wizard steps. As far as the interface is concerned, ksFontViewer adopts a normal window with a well-structured layout, which doesn't include particular attractive graphical elements. However, it's easy to navigate. All installed fonts are loaded at program startup automatically, so you can explore the list of all font families and types. After selecting an entry from the list, the utility reveals sample text by applying the corresponding text. View fonts and write text It's possible to replace the sample text with your own, either by typing or pasting it from the Clipboard. If it's a longer text document, you can maximize the main application window to get a better view. As far as font settings are concerned, you can personalize the text color, increase or decrease the font size, as well as make it bold or italic, depending on your preferences. Unfortunately, the tool doesn't implement options for printing information, nor for exporting it to file as an image. Evaluation and conclusion It didn't put a strain on the machine's performance in our tests, thanks to the fact that it needed a low amount of resources to work properly. Unsurprisingly, it didn't hang, crash or prompt error dialogs. Although it hasn't been updated for a long time, it worked smoothly on newer Windows editions. Nevertheless, you can test ksFontViewer for yourself, since it's free to use. When installing the app, one immediately discovers that it is not a typical application as it is nothing more than a simple and clear window. The application basically acts as an application which lets the user change a font family and the font selection for the displayed document. No fancy extra features are in the app. At no point during the installation, does it ask for any special settings, etc. Everything is clean and simple. There is a direct control panel over the right top corner which gives the user direct access to settings, etc. In addition, the window with the font combobulator is the only window, no dialogs, popups or other alerts. The application basically just lets you change the font for the currently displayed page. It lets you change the font family and the font. A user can go around and click a font. Once the user is done with the font selection, there is an option to save it. Once you save the settings, you will then see a page with preview of all the fonts available on your system. This is another very simple and clean window. In case you want to see the preview of a font for the application can be displayed.
